tion does not want information that could embarrass the U.S.- backed government.

Retired Adm. Bobby R. Inman, who stepped down as deputy CIA director in June, said the absence of intelligence on the right resulted from a decision to concentrate the few U.S. intelligence "assets" in El Salvador on the actions of leftist guerrillas.

"You go back to the '79-80 time frame, the answer is that there were almost no assets, and then as the assets were built up, they were concentrated on what was judged to be the highest priority problem," the guerrilla threat, Inman said in an interview.

However, a House intelligence committee staff report issued last month claims the "dearth of firm information" on El Salvador's right-wing death squads stems from an apparent lack of interest among U.S.
policymakers and intelligence analysts.

The report noted that when documents on rightist activity were captured from former Maj. Roberto D'Aubuisson in 1980, they were "virtually ignored not only by policymakers ... but more importantly by the intelligence community."

The documents, including arms lists and a log of meetings, were seized when D'Aubuisson and other rightists were arrested and charged with plotting a coup. The House report said that after the documents were turned over to the CIA, "their whereabouts is unknown."

The CIA has refused comment on the House report. D'Aubuisson is now head of El Salvador's Constituent Assembly.

About 38,000 people — mostly unarmed civilians — have died in the political violence that has wracked El Salvador the past three years. Some human rights groups have blamed government forces and right-wing paramilitary groups for up to 80 percent of the killings.

The shock felt by Richard and Elvira Kropf after losing their son in a dune buggy accident last month was compounded several days after the accident when they learned their son's eyes had been removed from the dune buggy accident's permission.

The Kropfs said knowing their son's eyes had been taken without their knowing it made a difficult situation worse. Their concern that it could happen to someone else led them to seek a change in the law, a process that has already been started by a Utah legislator.

Organ banks
The incident also led to a change in the Utah Eye Bank's policy. No eyes will be removed without the next of kin being notified, an Eye Bank official said.

According to the Utah Code, organ banks in the state can remove organs from bodies for transplant purposes without the consent of the next of kin.
The organ bank is required to make a "reasonable search" for the legal next of kin to gain permission, according to Utah law, but is allowed to remove organs if such a search fails.

According to Utah Eye Bank officials, legal next of kin refers to the parents of the deceased if unmarried or, in the case of a married person, the spouse must be found.

In the case of Gene Kropf, 34, and Loren Johnson, 20, who were killed in a dune buggy accident on Sept. 12, the eyes of both victims were removed without the permission of the legal next of kin. Eye Bank officials claim they made a reasonable search — a claim which is disputed by the Kropfs.

"We were home the day of the accident, and the phone was not in use, yet we were not contacted . . .
there was plenty of identification on Gene's body,
but no one ever called us."

He then went to Cedar Fort, where he met two rabbit hunters who helped him contact a Pleasant Grove Police dispatcher at 4:35 p.m.

The bodies were then taken to the American Fork Hospital, where Dr.
Robert Richards examined the bodies and determined they were dead.

The prospective donors, rather than the bank is informed there is a possible donor.

According to Sgt. Lance, the state medical examiners office could not have been contacted before 5:20 p.m.
Davis said the eyes were removed at 11:30 p.m. after the next of kin could not be notified, a search she said took nine and one-half hours.

Utah House Majority Leader
LeRoy McAllister said he was contacted by the Kropfs about the incident and has started a process that may lead to a change in the law.

"The key is the notification of the next of kin and the permission," McAllister said. The soonest the law could be changed is January, 1983, when the Utah legislature next meets.

Steel imports limited

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Europe agreed Thursday to limit shipments of European steel to this country, ending a bitter dispute and easing tensions in a strained trading relationship between the allies.

The agreement, reached only hours before a deadline for the imposition of penalty duties on imported steel, was accepted by U.S. steelmakers who had blamed the imports for contributing to their worst financial crunch since the Depression.

President Reagan announced the settlement while on a campaign swing in Omaha, Neb., and hailed it as "good news" for the steel industry and for the economy.

It will mean, he said, "more and lasting jobs in the steel industry, which will translate into good news on the employment front."

Had the restrictions been in place in 1981, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said, there could have been 25,000 to 30,000 more jobs for the U.S. industry.

"While we think this will be a shot in the arm for employment in the steel industry, this is not the answer to all of their problems," Baldrige cautioned at a White House news conference.

Etienne Davignon, the European Community industry commissioner, described the agreement as being "in the best interest of all steel producers."

He said European companies, also suffering serious financial problems, will be assured of "an export market and a market that pays."

In Pittsburgh, U.S. Steel Chairman David

Roderick said the pact covered a wider range of steel products than did an earlier tentative settlement worked out in August. The enforcement provisions, he said, were tougher in the new arrangement.

The pact clears up what has been a "very bitter dispute" between the allies, Baldrige said. He added that its resolution was "a great aid toward eventual solution" of two other trans-Atlantic trading disputes, one on a common agricultural policy and the other the U.S. sanctions on sales of oil and gas equipment to the Soviet Union.

Under the settlement, the European Community will limit its shipments of 11 steel products to this country starting around Nov. 1 and continuing through 1985.

The European Community said the quotas limiting shipments of 10 steel products will range from 2.2 percent of the U.S. market to 21.85 percent, with an average of 5.46 percent. The restrictions will be imposed under an export licensing system to be set up by the European Community. Those products currently command roughly 6 percent of the market.

Imports of pipe and tube products, a highly profitable segment of the American industry, will be held to 5.9 percent of the U.S. market under a separate arrangement that will require consultations between the allies for excessive shipments, U.S. officials said.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Gabriel Garcia Marquez, Colombian author of the novel "One Hundred Years of Solitude" and the world's best-selling writer in the Spanish language, was awarded the 1982 Nobel Prize in literature Thursday.

It was the first Nobel awarded to a Colombian in the 79 years the prestigious prizes have been given and the second first for Latin America this year. Former Foreign Minister Alfonso Garcia Robles of Mexico, co-winner of the peace prize, was his country's first winner.

The 18-member Swedish Academy of Letters said it honored the 54-year-old Latin-American writer of novels, short stories and political journalism "for his novels and short stories in which the fantastic and the realistic are combined in a richly composed world of imagination, reflecting a continent's life and conflicts."

LEBANON — Lebanese President Amin Gemayel vent overseas for the first time since his election and won an extension from the United Nations Security Council keeping the U.N. force on Lebanon safe for an additional two months.

After meeting with Gemayel on Wednesday, Reagan said he would "seriously consider" expanding the size and role of the peacekeeping force that now includes 1,200 U.S. Marines. He also committed to provide assistance in the rebuilding of Lebanon.

Israel has expressed opposition to the 7,000-man force in southern Lebanon that was set up to supervise the withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops from Lebanon.

POLAND — Ten thousand mourners lined the streets in Nowa Huta on Wednesday as a funeral procession took the body of a 20-year-old electrician, Bogdan Wlosik, who was shot last week in a demonstration against the government's outlawing of the union, to its resting site.

A solidarity banner was placed over the grave and members of the crowd carried banners advocating the outlawed union.

Polish officials have said that a plainclothes officer shot the demonstrator in self-defense last week after the policeman was recognized and chased near the Church of St. Mary Queen of Poland.

Leaders of the union urged workers in four cities to stay home Monday to protest the governments ruling on the independent union.

NATIONAL

— Investigations into the seven Tylenol deaths last month turned up at least two new clues this week, but authorities have yet to arrest a suspect.

More cyanide-laden Tylenol found by Chicago officials

CHICAGO (AP) — Another bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol containing cyanide-laden capsules was found by authorities checking bottles ordered pulled from store shelves Oct. 2, Police Superintendent Richard Brzezczek said Thursday.

Brzezczek said the bottle was found in shelf stock turned over to authorities by Dominick's Finer Foods, a grocery store within a mile of the Walgreen's Drug Store where the seventh reported Tylenol-cyanide poisoning victim, Chicagoan Paula Prince, purchased a 24-capsule bottle of the painkiller.

Mayor Jane Byrne banned sales of the best-selling over-the-counter pain remedy at a news conference called to announce that Chicago police had discovered the body of Prince, 35, in her apartment on Oct. 1.

Meanwhile, police and FBI agents in New York City said Thursday they were working on the assumption that James W. Lewis, wanted for questioning in the Tylenol killings, and his wife, Leona, were still in the city and continued their search.

The Lewis checked out of the Rutledge Hotel on Saturday, where they had been living in a $95-per-week room since Sept. 6. The seven people who swallowed poisoned Tylenol capsules died between Sept. 29 and Oct. 1.

"If he's in New York, we expect to get him, no question," said Capt. Eugene Burke.

About 50 calls have been logged at two New York hotline numbers publicized Wednesday.

Pictures taken by a drugstore surveillance camera captured a bearded man who investigators think might be James W. Lewis, who is suspected of trying to extort $1 million from Johnson and Johnson, makers of Tylenol, after the deaths.

The man shown in the photo appears to be wearing Paula Prince, a 35-year-old airline stewardess, who died only a few hours after the photo was taken, from cyanide poisoning. The picture is being analyzed by National Aeronautics and Space Administration to see if it can be enhanced so the man in the photo can be identified.

FBI investigations have also revealed that Lewis may have been registered in a Hotel in New York at the time of the deaths. Investigators are now trying to determine if Lewis could have traveled to Chicago before the deaths occurred.

Reagan signs bill to aid farmers, put grain to use

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — President Reagan, campaigning for farm votes and coming to the aid of Nebraska's threatened Republican governor, signed legislation Thursday that is intended to encourage greater production of alcohol fuel using surplus Midwestern grain.

Reagan said the bill, which authorizes the Agriculture Department to convert huge government-owned grain stocks into "gasohol," will go a long way toward raising farm prices by reducing the amount of grain held off the American market.

The bill's chief sponsor was Rep. Berkley Be- dell, D-Iowa.

The brief bill-signing ceremony in a local motel was attended by Gov. Charles Thorn, who is facing a tough challenge from Democrat Bob Kerrey.

Benson Institute aids hungry world

Delos Ellsworth, director of the Ezra Taft Benson Agriculture and Food Institute, demonstrates a solar oven and food dryer. The institute is often called on to work with LDS Church systems in developing programs for efficient food storage. Couple missionaries who are sent to serve in underdeveloped countries instruct families on how to be self-sufficient.

Finding ways to produce more food for a hungry world and store it properly is the goal of the Ezra Taft Benson Agriculture and Food Institute.

According to D. Delos Ellsworth, director of the institute, experiments are conducted that could help Third World countries grow more food per acre and feed livestock more efficiently.

A family could be self-sufficient using only 1.5 acres of land, Ellsworth said. The family could raise all of its own food and livestock, plus have extra to sell for a profit, he said.

The institute is often called upon to work with the LDS Church welfare system in developing programs for efficient food storage, Ellsworth said.

"The food storage and welfare programs of the church are not just for emergencies; they are primarily for developing an improved way of life for the saints," he said.

Early in the spring, LDS Church and educational leaders requested that the Benson Institute sponsor a personal and family preparedness workshop after groups from Puerto Rico, Argentina, Mexico and Chile visited the institute in 1981, said Luis V. Espinosa, Latin American coordinator for the institute.

Small-scale agriculture is practiced by almost one billion of the world's farmers, most of them in developing countries, said Ellsworth. The production from these farms feeds the majority of the world's population.

Hearing for heiress reset for December

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Preliminary hearing for Frances Schreuder, charged with first-degree murder in the death of her millionaire father, has been reset for Dec. 6.

The hearing originally was set for Nov. 15 but was rescheduled by 5th Circuit Judge Paul Grand on Wednesday to give her new attorney time to prepare a defense.

Michael Rosen, a prominent New York lawyer, said he had just completed a lengthy murder trial in New York and had not had a chance to familiarize himself with the Utah case.

He asked the court "not to take advantage of the fact that we're the latest in a succession of attorneys" hired and fired by Mrs.

Schreuder. The New York woman is accused of plotting with her son Marc Schreuder to kill Franklin James Bradshaw to keep him from omitting her from his will.

Bradshaw, 76, founder of a chain of auto-parts stores, was shot in the back at his two-story house here July 23, 1978.

Marc Schreuder, 21, admitted to the shooting and was convicted of second-degree murder and sentenced to five years to life imprisonment. His attorney contended Schreuder had been under extreme pressure from his mother to kill his grandfather.

Rosen, who had asked the hearing be postponed to Jan. 10, said he needed time to study possible motions. He said one argument that could be raised was whether the murder charge should have been presented by a grand jury.

Library provides getaway

MELKINGTON Staff Writer

The room on the third floor of the library provides students with an alternative to regular studies, said John Christensen, general reference librarian.

"We have westerns, mysteries, romance and general fiction," Christensen said. "Science fiction and fantasy are the students' favorites," he said.

The room contains more than 3,000 books, most of which are paperbacks, said Christensen. Students read the books both for entertainment and for class assignments. "During the off season, when I am not in school, I like science fiction," said Mark Schaff, a junior from Los Angeles majoring in accounting. "Right now I read books to help me out in school," he said.

The sampler room was started because the library perceived a need to satisfy students' general reading interests, said Christensen. Heavy circulation throughout the past 10 years has proved that need existed.

"Approximately 1,500 books are checked out from the sampler room each month," said Christensen.

That accounts for 5 percent to 10 percent of the entire library circulation, he said.

Because of heavy circulation, books frequently wear out. "When a book is worn out it is replaced," said Christensen. Certain authors' books, like Tolkien and C.S. Lewis, must be continually replaced.

Books for the room are chosen by Christensen. "I try to choose books in all different areas," he said.

A suggestion box is available in the room for student input. Students frequently request best-sellers, said Christensen.

Many students have no time to read books at home, and the sampler room provides a place to stop during the day and take a break.

Utahson may call special session

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Gov. Scott Matheson may call a special legislative session to benefit the unemployed.

Major Department announced this week that it was among states no longer eligible for federal funding for the unemployed.

The department recently changed the law that determines where the program is from 4 percent to 5 percent. Since Utah's unemployment rate is below 5 percent, the program no longer can continue in Utah, he told his monthly KUED news conference Wednesday that he is trying to unravel the complexities of the matter and a special session is to be "seriously considered" if it becomes evident that state supplemental funding is going to run out in a few months.

The Utah Democrat said the state "deep recession," and, if necessary, he will consider increasing the 2 percent spending cutback he imposed on state agencies.

"If revenues do not increase as this year goes on, we will have to decrease spending to balance the budget," he said.

Rowdy cougar football fans to receive tickets for spirit

Tickets to the Utah State football game Oct. 30 will be awarded to 20 of the Cougars' most spirited fans, according to Kevin Reeve, ASBYU Athletics Office vice president.

Reeve said 100 students who displayed spirit were selected at last week's game to receive tickets to the Utah State game, and 100 more will be selected at Saturday's game.

All the names will be put together and 20 will be drawn randomly Wednesday to receive tickets.

Most spirited During Saturday's game, members of the athletics office staff will be going from section to section looking for the most spirited fans.

For the students to be chosen, they must meet four qualifications. They must wear blue, follow the directions of the pep squad, know and sing the fight song and have a high amount of enthusiasm, he said.

Reeve said 40 more tickets will be given to the most spirited club.

"Obviously, we can't choose everyone, but the object is to get the enthusiasm going," Reeve said.

The same procedure will be followed for the next two games.

Reception, dinner for Ray Beckham set for Saturday

Tickets are available for a fund-raising reception and $100-a-plate dinner Saturday night honoring Ray Beckham, a former candidate for the 3rd Congressional District.

The hosts of the dinner, which will be at the Mapleton home of financial advisor Howard Ruff, will be Sen. Orrin Hatch and Rep. Jim Hansen.

Randy Beckham, a member of the committee planning the dinner, said a $100-a-plate donation is being requested, but that any contribution will be accepted.

"I think the unique thing about this dinner is that when Hatch or Hansen meet with a group, it is usually with thousands of people," he said.

Cosy atmosphere "At this dinner it will be a small group and there will be an opportunity for the people to mingle with Hatch and Hansen. It will be a cosy atmosphere," he said.

According to Brent Haymond, Springville mayor and organizer of the dinner, the purpose of the dinner is to raise money to assist Beckham with his campaign expenses. "We are very fortunate to have had a man like Ray Beckham run for public office," said Haymond. "Beckham ran a great campaign in the Republican primary, and we cannot ignore our responsibility to help him now."

Appreciation night Haymond said the event is being called a "Beckham Appreciation Night" because of the community service and leadership Beckham has given the people of Utah.

"We feel this dinner will, in a small way, demonstrate our appreciation to a man who has given years of service to his community," he said.

Mormons mix names

By COLLEEN FOSTER
Staff Writer

A peculiar pattern of naming children exists in the LDS Church culture, according to a BYU assistant professor of English.

Mormon parents combine parts of names and add prefixes or suffixes to names in creating a wide variety of "made-up" names for their children, especially for females, said Don Norton, faculty writing specialist in the English department.

Mormon parents combine parts of names and add prefixes or suffixes to names in creating a wide variety of "made up" names for their children.

A student of Norton's, Geraldine LaDue, researched and wrote a paper about this "naming phenomenon" a number of years ago, and Norton followed up her research.

She discovered a practice common in Mormon culture naming children with names never heard anywhere else, said Norton.

Parts of parents' names are often combined to make new ones, such as JoDan (Joan and Daniel) and Earmae (Earl and Mae), she wrote.

Another way parents create names is by adding any number of prefixes—La, Da, Jo, May, Va—or suffixes like -ene, -lynn, -etta or -lene.

Norton said LaDue became interested in these names when she came to BYU from the East. When she introduced herself to people here as "Gere LaDue," people would consistently call her "Gere la," or "Sister Due." It caused her to notice the pattern, he said.

"She thought it was hilarious," said Norton, so she decided to do research on it.

Using Utah newspapers, telephone books, directories and LDS ward records as sources, LaDue collected lists of such unusual names as RaeAnn, Kaylene, LaBerta and Julene.

Shalynn Murphy, a senior from New Canaan, Conn., said her and her sister LaDawn's names were contrived by a combining of their parents' names.

She said the practice in her family started with her grandparents, Laura and Winslow, who were from Idaho.

Preference to be Nov. 13

By LANCE WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

ASBYU Social Office cogs are grinding out details in preparation for the 1982 Preference event, scheduled Nov. 13.

ASBYU Social Office Vice President David Slack said his office has been flooded with calls from students wanting to know what is planned this year.

Tickets are scheduled to go on sale Nov. 1 at the ticket office on the third floor of the ELWC, according to Joyce Holt, social office dance director. The ticket office will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Nov. 1 and from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. each business day thereafter.

Lining up

Holt said students usually begin lining up to buy tickets as soon as they go on sale. She said because the lines are so long, a limited number of tickets will be distributed to students on a first-come, first-served basis.

"The first day is usually the biggest," Holt said. "I think we'll probably sell out quickly."

Holt said in the past many students have paid for tickets with checks that have been made in incorrectly. "If you are writing checks for your tickets, please make them out to the ELWC ticket office," she added.

Noon activities

Noon activities are scheduled for the week before Preference, said Slack. "We would like to hold them in the Checkerboard Square or the West Court, but we'll hold them in the Garden Court if the weather is bad."

Holt said the number of tickets sold for the dances depends on their locations. The cost of the tickets also depend on the location, she said.

Seven dances are planned:

- ELWC Ballroom
- Skyroom
- Bridal Veil Falls
- Colonial House
- Prospector Square
- Statu Capitol

Students who have questions concerning the number or cost of tickets for a particular dance location should contact the ASBYU Social Office.

Teacher nominations open

By DIANE PASSARELLI
Staff Writer

Nominations for professors who display "excellence in teaching, leadership and research" are being made this week.

The Blue Key award for the "Professor of the Month" is "a way to promote academic excellence at BYU," according to Su Stevenson, chairman of the Professor of the Month/Year committee.

The award is presented by the BYU chapter of Blue Key, a national honor organization, Stevenson said.

"The award is one way to recognize the achievements of others and to reinforce their efforts," Stevenson said.

The process of choosing the professor of the month begins when a student wishing to nominate a certain professor completes a nomination form, which may be picked up near drop boxes at all college advisement centers, at the north end of the library and in the ELWC Stepdown Lounge. After the nomination is received by members of Blue Key, they set to work investigating each of the nominations.

The committee contacts the department heads of the nominated professors and inquires about that person's academic achievements, contributions and reputation. These factors, together with the student recommendations and the teacher's known rapport with students, help the committee to decide which professor will be chosen, Stevenson said.

"The decision process is totally independent of politics," he added.

At the end of the academic year, one "Professor of the Month" is chosen "Professor of the Year."

"Anyone can vote for their choice of Professor of the Year," just as anyone can nominate someone for "Professor of the Month," Stevenson said.

Nominations will be accepted through Tuesday at 5 p.m.

The "Professor of the Month" for October will be announced Nov. 2 at the 10 a.m. Forum assembly in the Marriott Center.

Indian students receive funding

More than $50,000 has been donated by two California foundations for research and for scholarships to Indian students at BYU.

The Marie Stauffer Signal Foundation and the National In-One Foundation made the donation to BYU because of its Indian education program and its interest in traditions of native Americans.

Dr. Con Osborne, chairman of the American Indian education department, expressed gratitude to the two organizations for the donation.

"A total of $225,000 has been put into an endowment from which interest will supply grants and scholarships to about 30 students per year who would not be funded otherwise," he said.

Part of this money will be set aside as an endowment to establish the annual Harold CedarTree Dance Contest during Indian Week, Osborne said.

The dance contest is named after CedarTree, an Arapaho Indian who was born in Oklahoma. CedarTree taught many students traditional songs and dances that he learned from his grandfathers and elderly members of his tribe.

"Many tribes are having difficulty in funding qualified students for college," he said. "This endowment will help considerably where there is a definite need."

Women graduates plan conference

By MIKE MONTROSE
Staff Writer

Women in BYU's Graduate School of Management have been chosen to be hosts for a 1983 conference for a national women's organization, said Ann Jensen, president of the group.

Jensen, who is also president of this year's "Women in Management" organization at BYU, said the decision, which was made this month, provides BYU an opportunity for national recognition.

Jensen said the National Network of Graduate Business School Women was founded in 1978. It now has more than 40 accredited graduate schools of management as members, including Harvard, Yale and Stanford.

Jensen oversees about 3,000 women from these universities.

The organization was formed to highlight the presence and accomplishments of women in graduate schools of business throughout the United States, she said.

The network holds a national conference every year to further the goals of the organization and to serve as a national forum on women's issues. Next year's will be the fifth such conference.

The conference, in late March, will feature "prominent speakers from business and academic institutions addressing critical management issues," she said.

Cougars, Rams clash

Y must win again

By DOUG WILKS
Senior Reporter

It is now a weekly ritual, BYU faces a situation Saturday in its battle with the State Rams in order to keep the upper half race for the WAC title. The Cougars and the Rams are coming off two victories and will be gunning to improve their chances for the WAC crown and a trip to the Bowl December 17.

The Rams bring a 2-2 WAC record (3-3 into Cougar Stadium in a must-win situation, if they maintain any hope for the title. The Rams have gained respectability by defeating Wyoming and New Mexico last Saturday, the Rams upset Air Force

lifters 'power' to top

The powerlifting team walked away with the first Northwestern United States State Powerlifting Championship on Saturday.

The Cougars, coached by Dr. L. Jay Sylvester, finished first-place finishes in four weight at the competition in Boise, Idaho.

The Cougars, competing in the bench press, para-bar and dead lift, were ranked according to weight lifted in all three events.

Perry Markle, a powerlifting All-American, captured the tournament's Best Lifter by hefting a total of 1,615 pounds in the three lifts. His total was also tops in his 198-pound class.

State Steve Curtis, competing in his first power lift, was awarded the Best Bench for his lift of 460 pounds. Other firsts were Rod Fehlman, 114-pound division.

'Morgueish' fans create dilemma

By ROBERT PATTON
Sports Editor

Fan indifference is once again at the forefront in the minds of fans, the football team and the media.

How, one wonders, can a stadium with a crowd of 65,000 be so morgueish? What can be done to remedy the situation? How can BYU ever hope to gain national power status without crazed, rabid, maniacal fans? Nothing short of frothing at the mouth can be tolerated.

One solution for the mellowness of the BYU boosters is definitely out of the question. Critics of the complacency may not realize that around a good part of the nation, the crowd is rambunctious because of some heavy-duty alcoholic consumption.

Not everyone gets plastered, but a good drunk in the vicinity can bring out the worst and loudest in anyone. But the possibility of putting several obnoxious, rowdy boozers in each section is outrageous, and the problem remains as perplexing as getting an ice cream sundae out of the machines on campus.

The BYU-Utah State game will be telecast on closed-circuit television Oct. 30 in the Marriott Center. Tickets go on sale at 10 a.m. today at the Marriott Center ticket office.

The Washington Huskies and BYU will begin a six-game football series in 1985, announced athletic directors Glen Tackett of BYU and Mike Lude of Washington on Thursday.

The first contest will be Sept. 14, 1985, in Cougar Stadium.

Most serious students won't be around then, but maybe the game will offer enough interest by that time to be televised nationally.

Baseball has to be happy with its latest Fall Classic.

The Cardinals and the Brewers put on a great show and it was good to see Darrell Porter end a tough season with the MVP award.

After much-publicized drug and alcohol problems and a stint as the brunt of Cardinal fans' ire, Porter has come a long way and has to be admired for hanging in there time and time again.

A Holiday Bowl press release came in the mail this week listing potential opponents for the WAC champion.

Six teams are scheduled to get a look from the selection committee Saturday.

Three are from the Big 8 (Nebraska, Oklahoma and Missouri), two from the Big 10 (Illinois and Wisconsin) and one from the Pac-10 (Arizona).

The mailman also brought an envelope from Athens, Ga., with a Bulldog in a red jersey on the front.

The 'Dawg is holding a sign that says "Herschel for Heisman."

Inside is a rundown of Walker's season thus far and a column reserved for "Herschel's Assault on NCAA Career Rushing Record."

Next to his stats against BYU is an asterisk denoting "Broken thumb, immobilized in playing cast."

The last thing Walker was against, BYU was immobile.

Every year is election year.

Holmoe crucial as holder for Gunther's place kicks

By TED LEHMANN
Staff Writer

Tom Holmoe is best known for his play as a defensive back on the BYU football team, but his assignment as a field goal and point-after-touchdown holder is vital to his team's success.

Most holders receive little publicity and go unnoticed by the fans. For a position that goes unnoticed, "Holmoe must be able to call the snap, place the football with the proper tilt, and make sure the threads are facing away from the kicker all in only 1.3 seconds," Kurt Gunther, BYU's field-goal kicker, said.

If that isn't enough to worry about, Holmoe must also plan in advance for the occasional bad snap.

Holmoe said he yells "CE!" when a bad snap occurs. "This signals the linemen to continue blocking and the receivers to go out. I must decide whether to run or throw the ball," he added.

Holmoe said he doesn't get nervous in spite of the pressure on him. He attributes his calmness to his confidence in Regan Andrews, center for BYU's special teams.

"Ninety-percent of my job is having confidence in Regan and only 10 percent is making the hold," he added.

Although it may seem hard for some fans to believe, "special teams contribute to one-third of a team's success," Holmoe said. "If a team doesn't spend time practicing with special teams, it can kill them."

BYU special teams are not an exception to the rule. Every day, Holmoe, Andrews and Gunther spend at least 15 minutes practicing the procedure. Tom Ramage, BYU special teams coach said.

According to Holmoe, most holders are quarterbacks, receivers or defensive backs. "Holders are supposed to have good hands," he added.

"Kurt has great confidence in Tom. He has great hands and the ability to place the ball quickly," Ramage said.

Holmoe commented on the importance of teamwork with the center, the holder and the kicker. "Andrews and I are crucial to Kurt. The three of us work together."

One important element of their cooperation is the precise timing of the placement. "Tom is the link between myself and the center," Gunther said. "If the hold is over 1.3 seconds, there is a very good chance of the kick being blocked. If it is under 1.3 seconds, I will probably not get off a good kick."

Hears only applause

Porter named series MVP

ST. LOUIS (AP) — He's borne crosses and today he knows joy. He's fought painful personal battles with alcohol and drugs and emerged successful.

He's faced difficult times from fans, who treated him as a cruel substitute for a hero gone.

But now Darrell Porter hears only applause, for he is the Most Valuable Player of the 1982 World Series.

"A lot of guys could have gotten it, but this means a great deal to me," Porter said after the St. Louis Cardinals, a band of baseball smugglers, overtook the Milwaukee Brewers 6-3 and won the 75th World Series in a seventh game filled with drama.

Porter is correct. There were several worthy candidates for the MVP, including Keith Hernandez, who had eight runs batted in during the series, and Cardinal relief ace Bruce Sutter, who had two wins and a save.

But the case can be made quite nicely for Porter, too.

He batted .286, had eight hits, five RBI, one home run and scored four runs during the seven games.

He was flawless behind the plate, blocking wayward pitches, and he threw out two runners. The Brewers, in fact, had only one stolen base during the Series.

Still, Porter's value to the Cardinals goes much deeper, and history tells it best.

It was 1980, a pivotal year for Porter, who at the time caught for the Kansas City Royals.

In April, Porter was released from a rehabilitation center, where he was treated for his alcohol and drug problems.

Manager Whitey Herzog had left before the season began and later became both manager and general manager of the Cardinals.

But Kansas City, under Jim Frey, went to the World Series despite a disappointing year for Porter, whose batting average fell to 42 points.

Porter had a dreadful World Series, batting just .143.

When the Series ended, Porter took the free agent route, and it was his old friend Herzog and the Cards who took a chance on him, picking him up in the draft.

Porter would probably never say his battles are over — with drugs, alcohol, hitting or with fans.

"The fans will probably boo him if he has a bad week next year," Herzog joked before the seventh game.

The story is familiar. Porter's miserable season this year, just 231.

Then came the championship series, where he was named MVP, batting .556 against Atlanta, now, another honor.

"Does the MVP make up for he was asked as cameras whirled champagne flowing around his happy locker room."

"No," replied Porter. "I do it at making up for anything only taking one step after step."

President phones Cardinals

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)

President Reagan telephoned from Air Force One on Wednesday to congratulate St. Louis Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog on his team's victory in the World Series, clinched with a 6-3 win over Milwaukee.

From somewhere over Iowa as he flew to Omaha, Reagan told Herzog: "It was a great series. You've got a lot to be proud of."

Herzog thanked Reagan and said, "I know you're a great baseball fan."

Y rugger's face Zebras

The BYU rugby team meets the Idaho Zebras on Saturday at Haws Field at 11 a.m. in what coach John Seggar predicts will be a good match.

Seggar said several of the Zebras are on an All-Star team he coaches and are excellent players. "They'll give us a good game."

Seggar is pleased with the performance of the BYU rugby team this season and particularly with the performance of Cougar rugger Mark Ormsby.

"He's scored 37 points in four matches. Mark scored 12 points in our match with the Alumni, eight in the Denver match, 11 against Air Force and six points against the Griffins."

Dean Ormsby and Steve Gingrich are also strong players for the Cougars. "Dean helps hold down the back line, and Gingrich has scored in every match this season," said Seggar.

The rugger team will travel to Snake River for a match on Oct. 30 and play Utah State on Nov. 4. The match with Utah State will be the 200th game Seggar has coached for the BYU team.

Icccats travel to San Diego

BYU's first-season hockey team takes its undefeated record back out on the road this weekend as it travels to San Diego to face the Gulls of the United States International University.

With their potent offense, the Icccats are averaging 11 goals per game against winless USIU Friday and Saturday nights.

3-win weekend

The Cougars are coming off a three-win weekend in Alberta, Canada, as they defeated Mount Royal College twice, 10-5 and 8-7, and whipped the Taber Oil Kings, a junior league A team, 15-2. Last week USIU lost its home opener to Minnesota-Duluth 9-2, but battled back to a 3-3 tie the following night.

Gulls' record

The Gulls' record could be deceiving, however. Last year USIU upset North Dakota, the 1982 NCAA champions.

BYU head coach Brent Meeke admits the Cougars will be facing a tough, seasoned USIU team, a squad that is carrying 20 full-scholarship players. "Whenever you take on a college hockey power like USIU or North Dakota, it's sure to be tough," Meeke said.

"But because of the victories we had against Mount Royal, our team morale is very high," he added. "When one team is on the ice against another, it doesn't really matter if there are two or 20 scholarship players."

Explosive offense

Meeke's explosive offense, led by freshman Marty Irvine and Leonard Meyer, will be on the line again to propel the Icccat attack. "There is no question that we have a very young but aggressive team out there this year," Meeke said.

USIU and BYU will turn the tables next weekend as the Cougars return home to play at home against the Gulls in BYU's season opener at the Cottonwood Recreational Center in Salt Lake City.

Spikers face Aggies, Lobos this weekend

BYU's women spikers, ranked ninth in this week's NCAA volleyball poll, face their toughest competition of the conference season this weekend.

Tied at 3-0 with New Mexico State for the High Country Athletic Conference lead, the Cougars meet the Aggies today at 7 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

Saturday, BYU will battle New Mexico at 11 a.m. The Lobos are 2-1 in HCAC play, losing a 17-15, 16-14, 15-3 match to the Aggies last week.

BYU will be putting its 21-game winning streak on the line when it faces the Aggies. The 24-3 Cougars have posted a perfect 15-0 home record.

Cougar coach Elaine Michaelis said: "New Mexico State and New Mexico are both contenders for the conference championship. And we almost have to beat them at home because we don't know what might happen when we play them on the road."

Michaelis said the Aggies are a strong offensive squad. She said that BYU's serving would be a key factor in the match, because if the Cougars are able to serve well, they can keep the Aggies out of their offense.

BYU met New Mexico earlier this season in poll play at the San Diego Invitational, and the Cougars downed the Lobos 15-6, 15-10.

"When we played them last they were really down and out," Michaelis said. "But they have come back and are playing good ball."

messers from BYU and Utah State battle in last season's triumph over the Aggies. The Cougar lacrosse team faces Utah State today. Lacrosse is a sport that originated with southern Indian centuries ago.

Cougar lacrosse part of 'old' trend

By SCOTT TAYLOR
Staff Writer

Recent trends like alligator shirts, button-down collars, quiche and lacrosse have hit the nation. In rebuttal, a book has emerged claiming that "Real Men Don't Eat Quiche."

While that may or may not be the case, real men play a real game called lacrosse. And it's tough and rugged. Lacrosse fans and first-time spectators will have one last chance this fall to see the BYU lacrosse team in a home contest as it meets Utah at 10:30 a.m. Saturday on the field south of the Smith Fieldhouse.

In an earlier contest this autumn, Utah defeated BYU 15-13 in Salt Lake City.

BYU is coming off a lopsided 18-5 victory over Utah State last week.

Although the emphasis on lacrosse may seem recent, the sport originated with southern Indian tribes centuries ago. Only war was more brutal, with injury and death frequent in these early games, some of which lasted an entire day.

Having since been refined considerably, modern lacrosse is growing nationwide. The sport is increasing in popularity among the collegiate ranks as well.

BYU player-coach Greg Freihofner says his 35-member squad — the largest-ever BYU lacrosse team — is a result of "the growing popularity of the sport across the nation — plus we have a lot of people from the East Coast area." He added that about a dozen members are first-time players.

Freihofner said NCAA championships are held each spring, and collegiate leagues have been organized on both coasts of the country.

According to Freihofner, lacrosse is picking up in popularity in the Rocky Mountain area, with organized teams located at every WAC college except Hawaii.

He described the sport as a fast-moving combination of several sports, saying that lacrosse has "the hitting of hockey and the passing and teamwork of basketball." He added that the sport's slogan is "the fastest game on foot."

BYU's final fall competition will be in a tournament in Logan. The Cougars will compete in regular-season play starting in the spring.

and relaxation is nice, but it hasn't lasted BYU's cross-country squads.

High the Cougars did not compete in last fall's Invitational, they have been gearing up for the second annual BYU-Nike Autumn Classic Saturday at the Timpanogos Municipal course in Provo.

Of the nation's top cross-country teams and leading individual runners will be in the when the gun sounds for the women's 5 a.m. The men's contest begins at 11 a.m. Headquarters is the Utah County Travel Building at 1290 S. University Ave. Coach Patrick Shane encourages the fans to see the race to park in the parking area to the building, rather than at the golf clubhouse.

Invited champion UCLA will head a field of runners, including host UCLA, the College of Eastern Utah, Idaho State, Nevada-Las Vegas, Nevada-Reno, Utah, Utah State, Weber State and Wyoming.

Placed third

BYU placed third last year behind the Bruins and Idaho State's Bengals.

Shane said the Timpanogos is the flattest cross-country course in the nation and men's coach Sherard James said because it is so flat, times should be exceptionally fast.

"It should be a fast, close race," James said. "And UCLA, Idaho State and BYU all have a shot at winning."

UCLA, ranked No. 1 in the nation, is favored to win its second Classic title. The Bruins finished in the top five in every meet they entered in 1981. BYU outran the Bruins to grab first place at the Aztec Invitational Oct. 2, but UCLA battled back and defeated the Cougars to win the Stanford Invitational on Oct. 9.

James said Cougar harriers Ed Eyestone, Francis Clark and Jay Woods will probably battle UCLA's Jon Butler and Steve McCormack and Idaho State's Greg Burrell for the individual title.

Solo competitors

Shane said several runners competing without teams may lead the men's field. Although last year's winner, Paul Cummings, will not compete, he said former BYU All-American Doug Padilla and Padilla's Athletics West Track Club teammate, Richie Harris, will test the collegiate athletes in the two-lap, 10,000-meter race.

"UCLA will be tough" in the 5,000-meter women's run, Shane said. "They have a very strong, experienced team and they will be hard to beat."

The fifth-ranked Bruins will battle host BYU, Colorado State, Nevada-Las Vegas, Nevada-Reno, New Mexico, Ricks College, Utah, Utah State, and Wyoming for the women's title.

Women's title

Shane said BYU, Colorado State and Utah will be chief contenders against UCLA for the women's title. The Cougars placed second to Cal-Berkeley last year's competition.

Shane said Cougar All-Americans Carey May and Janell Neeley, UCLA's All-American Linda Goen and strong recruit Polly Plumer, Utah's Jill Molen and Colorado State's All-Americans Robin Wolfe and Bonnie Tarnis are the favorites for the individual crown.

Although there were some individual competitors from BYU, neither the Cougar men nor the BYU women competed for team points in the Utah Invitational on Oct. 15 in Salt Lake City.

Men's coach Sherard James said Kris Cary ran exceptionally well. Cary, a freshman from Provo, has moved up into the eighth spot on the Cougar squad, and he could run Saturday if senior Blaine Anderson has not recovered from an injury sustained in a fall he took at the Stanford Invitational.

The men's and women's teams have worked out on Utah's cross-country course. James and women's coach Patrick Shane said they wanted their squads to have the opportunity to learn the course before the regional competition Nov. 12. The regional meet will be run on the Utah course.

Video movies make great parties

By SUZANNE HANSEN
Staff Writer

Convenience and low prices are keys to the recent popularity of video entertainment in Utah County, say renters and users of video equipment. Local video store employees attribute the success of the video cassette market to the low prices of rental and club memberships.

"People will always want to go out to the movies, but they can't always afford to do it," explained Layne Sisk, a salesman at a video store in the University Mall. "Video cassettes are an inexpensive form of good entertainment," he said.

Brent Dunford, a video store manager, said: "People are getting tired of spending over $30 to take the family to the movies. For $20 you can get four video movies. You get more for your money."

Laura Holland, a junior from Cupertino, Calif., majoring in administrative management, said: "It's a way to get a whole bunch of people together to watch a movie. You can start when you want, it's inexpensive and fun, and you can do it in your own home," she said.

"They're fun and there are no lines," said Holly Moore, a sophomore from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., majoring in archives.

Leonard Piquet, a self-employed salesman from Idaho Falls, owns his own video recorder and is a member of a local video club. He said his club membership gives him an opportunity to save money.

"To take a date to a show costs at least $7. This way I have convenience, comfort and food all right here for just a couple of dollars," Piquet said.

Piquet said the biggest reason he invested in video equipment was to provide family activities in the future. "I think it can bring a family closer together to do things like this. There are a lot of educational cassettes on the market too."

"More people are spending more leisure time at home," said Lance Hammit, manager of a Provo store.

Prices have come down, so demand for video equipment is up, he explained. "Somebody saw that a rental market existed too, and it's really taken off. This kind of thing appeals to everybody," Hammit said.

Rental clubs and outlets are sprouting up throughout Utah County. Besides movies, several offer video cameras for rent, along with blank cassettes for sale.

Video companies are looking forward to continued growth in sales and rentals. "It's here to stay,"

Study says smokers more likely to get flu

BOSTON (AP) — People who smoke cigarettes are more likely than non-smokers to catch the flu, and also get sicker when they fall victim to that winter misery, a study shows. The research, directed by Dr. Jeremy D. Kark of the Hebrew University-Hadassah School of Public Health and Community Medicine in Jerusalem, was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine.

In a separate study in the journal, Boston doctors found that smoking women go through menopause earlier than non-smokers, but seem to be less likely to get breast cancer.

The influenza research was conducted on 336 healthy Israeli soldiers who were exposed to a new strain of flu during the winter of 1978. Of the 168 smokers exposed, 69 percent caught the flu, while only 47 percent of the non-smokers became ill.

Moreover, the number of cigarettes smoked seemed to play a part in the seriousness of the attacks.

New office to handle technology information

BYU is establishing an information-systems office to handle broad issues affecting the school's computing, printing, copying and other information-processing operations.

Dr. Lynn E. McClurg, associate dean of the College of Physical and Mathematical Sciences, will head the new office, BYU President Jeffrey R. Holland announced.

The office was created because advances in technology make it necessary to handle issues and functions across lines that before defined one type of information network from another, Holland said. The move recognizes the university's information system as an institutional resource demanding special direction, accountability and coordination, he noted.

Holland said the new office will be an "advocate" for information systems and their uses, dealing with issues broader than those now handled by BYU Computer Services.

The office will handle issues that affect the university-wide information network.

Hunters ready to bag 100,000 deer

By GINA CALDWELL
Staff Writer

Hunting season for deer starts Saturday. About 100,000 mule deer are spotted, chased, shot, tagged and bagged by the 200,000 big-game hunters who roam the mountains and canyons of Utah. The 11-day pursuit, said Dale Gurley, coordinator for Utah Wildlife Resources, is the hunt this season looks like it will be "over all," he said.

Deer and bushes haven't lost all of their leaves yet, so there is still quite a bit of cover for the hunters. To spot the deer, look for the deer moving in the brush," said Gurley.

The "only" season will continue through November, but hunters must be able to identify the target deer with antlers five inches or longer to a legal buck.

Up to a $500 reward for the arrest of poacher, vandal or other illegal

— Dale Gurley

Excuse for shooting a doe or fawn, or for poaching by mistake, he said. If it does not seem honorable thing to do would be to clean up and notify a conservation officer as soon as possible. A citation will be issued, but the hunter will be considered in determining if he is a poacher.

Hunting regulations

Any hunter carrying a gun must have a license that includes a tag for one buck. The license is $10 for a resident and $120 for a non-resident. A student wishing to receive a resident license must have lived in Utah for 60 days. A non-resident must have lived in the state for 6 months to qualify for a resident license. A resident hunter must have a combination license for $25, which includes a deer, fish and upland-game license. A hunter who shoots on a highway, across a highway, or in a vehicle, is also illegal to carry a gun in a vehicle.

Hunters will have their licenses revoked for poaching and will be charged a $50 fine, said Gurley. Poaching is considered a misdemeanor. A poacher is charged for out-of-season hunting and the hunter may receive up to a $1000 fine and a jail sentence. A Class-B violation is one that occurs during the deer season; the hunter may receive a maximum fine of $250 and/or 6 months in jail.

Territory problems

Civilization has moved in on the hunting area. People are moving from the city to the country, especially in the Mapleton area. The deer are staying in a lot of these areas because their food supply is being reduced by a "people invasion."

Deer are eating shrubs and lawns and people are complaining to the Division of Wildlife Resources. Dog packs are ganging up on some of the deer and are chasing the weak animals, running them to death, Gurley said.

Gas, oil and electrical companies have placed power lines and other resource materials in the region, which reduces the food supply for the animals. The system becomes imbalanced by this influx of humanity.

In an effort to correct this problem, the division has bought some land to help preserve and maintain the ecosystems of these wild animals. But even these land purchases are not going to solve all the problems. Residents who want to live in rural areas must be willing to put up with some of the inconveniences associated with wild animals, said Gurley.

Wildlife Resources

There are 53 state conservation officers within the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources. Three officers are in southern Utah County.

"There is a lot of area to cover for one man," said Gurley, who covers a district of about 500 square miles. "We need a lot of public support and help. We offer up to a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest of a poacher, vandal or other illegal hunter."

"Some people think that we are busy only during deer season, but we are busy year round. We study land areas and survey plant and animal growth, range use, winter mortality rates for animals and plant-food utilization," said Gurley.

Deer eat the current year's growth on plants; if they eat any farther down on the stem, they reach woody tissue that they can not digest.

"One of our favorite things to eat is bitter brush, also known as the 'sagebrush plant.' We can determine the percent growth and the percent utilization by examining these plants," Gurley said.

Shows model of the BYU Jerusalem Center, which is to be completed in 1983 or 1984. President Spencer W. Kimball said the center is as further evidence that the world is our campus. The center will facilitate the expansion of Middle Eastern studies.

Prisoners invade Rich County jailhouse

PH, Utah

He said by the end of September, about four inches of water had accumulated in the jail building.

Since then, he said, "We've been doing our best to get rid of the water as well as the tiny green inmates."

Mortensen said most of the prisoners have been taking the influx in stride. Some have even made pets of the frogs.

Dispatcher Cathy Wilson said Thursday that lizards and mice also find the damp jail cozy.

County engineer George Frazier said four sump pumps have been installed.

The Orson Hyde Gardens, a seven-acre park on the outskirts of the city, was a cooperative effort between the city of Jerusalem and the family of Orson Hyde. The gardens paved the way for the Jerusalem Center project, Hone said.

"It will facilitate expansion of Middle Eastern studies, including Arabic and Hebrew languages, archaeology, geography, philosophy and current world events," President Kimball said. He said that in addition, scriptural studies research and possible graduate studies will be enlarged.

The Jerusalem Center Complex will be built on two acres or more of land still to be acquired. It will provide classrooms, auditoriums and administrative offices for educational needs, plus dormitories and all the attendant facilities, including an olympic-size swimming pool, Hone said.

The facilities will house up to 160 students and have meeting rooms for the two Jerusalem branches of the church. In addition, a visitors' center will be part of the complex, where people from throughout the world may learn about Jesus Christ and his teachings in the land where he labored, he said.

The architectural features of the complex will reflect the culture and traditional building style of Jerusalem, while meeting the functional needs of the university and the church, Hone said.

At this time there is no "mission" in Jerusalem; it falls under the jurisdiction of the international mission, Hone said. There is also a moratorium on baptisms. Only those who are visiting Jerusalem or are not natives may be baptized, he said.

Parts of lost missile found

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — Portions of a Pershing P-1 artillery missile that overshot its target by 300 miles have been found near Creede, Colo., nearly 18 years after it was fired.

White Sands spokesman Jim Lovelady said Wednesday that Army demolition experts were on the scene to recover the parts of the second stage of the missile, found Tuesday by an unidentified hunter just west of Creede.

The missile went out of control following its launch Nov. 19, 1964, spawning a year-long search by White Sands personnel.

Some pieces of the ill-fated missile were found in late 1965 by a Phoenix, Ariz., geology student, but major components remained lost until Tuesday, Lovelady said.

He said an Army explosive demolition crew from Rocky Mountain Arsenal, Colo., and local police had blocked off the area where the missile parts were found "as a precaution."

Lovelady said the parts included the motor from the second stage of the rocket and the missile's guidance package. He said the missile carried no warhead when it was launched.

Huish, Nielson meet, speak to Y students

By STEVE EATON
Senior Reporter

As usual in this year's campaigns, the economy took center stage as candidates for Utah's 3rd Congressional District expounded their political philosophies to about 150 BYU students in the Pardee Theater on Thursday.

Hank Huish, an independent candidate backed by the Democrats, said the nation's economic problems are rooted in the national deficit. He said revenue to offset the deficit could be raised by giving tax and bond incentives to the private sector, which would also stimulate the economy.

Howard Nielson, the Republican candidate in the race, emphasized the positive aspects of the economy, echoing President Reagan's view that the employment rate is a "lagging indicator." He talked of his ideas to create a "favorable climate" for business and his plans to balance the budget.

Huish talked of his desire to enhance the tax base in Utah through a healthier industrial base.

"Our federal government has continued to spend and spend and spend and not reinvest," Huish said.

Explaining that he does not think the nation can withstand the financial burdens it is incurring, Huish said the government must eliminate the federal deficit.

"I don't like taxes," Huish said. "I deplore taxes, but I also understand that the root cause of the problem is the federal deficit."

Nielson said lower prime interest and inflation rates as important indicators that the nation is on the right track. He said the dollar is more stable now than it has been, and said there has been a 25 percent reduction in taxes since Reagan took office.

"While we don't have a perfect record," Nielson said, noting the high unemployment rates and national deficit, "there are some helpful signs."

Nielson said the sale of public lands could produce revenue, and suggested that some "front-end money on a revolving fund basis" be granted certain industries to stimulate the economy.

"I think the whole key is to create a favorable business climate," Nielson said. "The government has to make sure it conveys the impression that it wants business to succeed."

'Journey to Golgotha'

Drama presents courage

By HOLLY ARMSTRONG
Staff Writer

"Journey to Golgotha," an original play with a powerful message of courage and conviction, premiered last night in the Margrett's Arena Theater, HFAC.

"This play addresses the plight of writers and religious dissidents in the USSR," according to Dr. Thomas Rogers, a professor of Russian and the author of the play.

"Journey to Golgotha," directed by Dr. Charles Metten, a professor of theater and cinematic arts, succeeds in provoking members of the audience to reexamine their values and commitment to their own religious beliefs.

The hero of the play is a young man who is a leader in the Komsomol — the Young Communists organization. His job with the Komsomol is to lead a group of men in the disruption and suppression of religious "dissidents." The crisis comes when the young man discovers that his mother is secretly a Christian. She announces that she plans to attend a pilgrimage that he has been ordered to disrupt. Based on the life of Sergei Kourdakov, a young Russian defector, the premiere performances of the play are dedicated to his memory. Kourdakov was murdered in the foothills of Los Angeles on Jan. 1, 1978 by agents of the KGB.

Set in modern-day Russia, the events of the play take place over a two-day period of time. This makes for tight dramatic action.

The emotion that permeates the production is continuous and constant throughout the three acts of the play.

While all the actors in the show deserve praise for fine performances, Betty Joe Smith and Mark B. Taft definitely win the laurels for their portrayals of the mother and the son.

That Smith is an actress of considerable experience is evident throughout her performance. Taft had never acted before this production

Betty Joe Smith and Jan Onychuk perform in the premiere of "Journey to Golgotha," presented Thursday night in the Margrett's Arena Theater, HFAC. The play is the story of a young communist who converts to Christianity.

tion but is "a natural actor" according to Metten. Their performances are powerful and lend an air of reality to the show.

While centering on the hardships and persecution experienced by religious dissidents, the play's overall theme is positive.

"That's all over. It's all in the past now," Galina, played nicely by Audra Call Moss, said.

Even with the knowledge that their pilgrimage will be raided, the group is determined to celebrate the Epiphany.

"Russia is Golgotha — and where Golgotha is, there, too, is resurrection," said the priest, played by Oscar Lee.

As Mitja, played by Taft, weighs the values of his colleagues against those of the Christians, he finds his friends lacking. "There is no honor, save among those I've persecuted," he concludes.

The real revelation comes when Mitja discovers the people he has worked for and idolized are not really committed to the cause of Marxism. "You don't really believe it, do you?" he asks. The response is, "No one really believes in Marxism. We just accept it."

An interesting dimension is provided by J. Scott Bronson playing an American CIA agent. The character is as devious and deceptive in his methods as the KGB agent, illustrating that oppression and lack of integrity can take place in any society, even ours.

By graphically describing some of the things these courageous people have endured in various "camps," the play succeeds in making the audience aware that not all Christians have the same freedoms that we, as Americans, enjoy.

Rogers said many people are not aware that there are martyrs and people who have lived heroic lives in our century.

"Journey to Golgotha" is a play about people who are willing to sacrifice even their lives for what they believe.

'Nuke' concert to draw interest

A "Nuke the Whales" concert will be staged Friday night as part of Concerts Impromptu, according to Randy Reber, a performer in the concert.

The concert will feature comedy and music acts by performers based on the slogan "Nuke the Whales."

Slogan

Reber said he hopes the slogan will catch people's eyes and draw interest in the concert.

Sixteen acts will feature guitar players, vocalists, comedians and hands. One band formed especially for this concert is "Moby Dick," Reber said.

"We hope the 'Nuke the Whales' slogan will bring out the crowd we want. We want an attentive but rowdy crowd."

Participation

Reber said, "People need to get involved because the concert, in order to be successful, needs good participation from the crowd."

Reber said the idea for the concert came from singer Jackson Browne's benefit concerts to stop the needless killing of whales.

Browne's concerts drew headlines, Reber said, and he hopes adapting the slogan will bring a livelier crowd to this concert.

The concert will be today at 8:30 p.m. in the Memorial Lounge, ELWC. Admission is free.

Shanghai Song and Dance Co.

Company to perform at Y

By LORI DESPAIN
Staff Writer

The Shanghai Song and Dance Company from the People's Republic of China will perform at BYU as part of a 13-day visit to the United States.

The ensemble, designated as official Artist-Ambassadors from China, will perform at the Marriott Center on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Another performance is scheduled in Salt Lake City's Capitol Theater on Oct. 29 at 8 p.m.

The 32-member group will visit Utah as guests of BYU's College of Fine Arts and Communications following an appearance at the Grand-Opening Festivities at Walt Disney World's EPCOT World Showcase in Orlando, Fla.

According to Ken Crossley, public relations director for the music department, this performance is important because the group is the first to leave Red China to come to the United States.

The company, founded in 1979, was originally a small performing group for 12 years with the Shanghai Municipal Dance School.

More than 200 performers, musicians and other personnel comprise the company.

Beginning at the age of 12, dancers with the company train for at least six years, performing different styles of folk and classical dances.

"They are the leading song and dance company in the People's Republic of China," said Dennis Hill, assistant director of BYU's folk dancers. "Their professional requirements are on the level of our top professional dance companies in the United States."

According to Hill, the dance and music of the Shanghai ensemble centers on three major styles: the traditional folklore of Central China; the folklore of the outlying regions and bordering nations; and the modern Chinese song and dance of this century.

Association with BYU began in 1979, when China sponsored the Young Ambassadors, The International Folkdancers and the Lamanite Generation have also toured China.

Randy Boothe, director of the Young Ambassadors, is currently in Florida with the ensemble as a consultant to Disney World.

Gia Ming Chen, a former pianist with the Shanghai company, is acting as official interpreter for the ensemble. She is currently studying piano at BYU.

The ensemble will observe performances and rehearsals by the Young Ambassadors and the International Folkdancers while visiting the BYU campus. They will also visit with several BYU officials.

Other plans include tours of LDS Church historical sites, the Utah State Capitol and visits with Salt Lake City Mayor Ted Wilson and Utah Governor Scott Matheson.

Tickets to the event are on sale at the music ticket office HFAC.

Tickets for the Salt Lake performance are available at the Capital Theater ticket office in Salt Lake City.

KBYU to show 'King Lear' in Shakespeare play series

"King Lear," thought by many critics to be the greatest of Shakespeare's tragedies, will be presented Saturday at 7 p.m. when KBYU-TV airs "The Shakespeare Plays."

The play was written around 1605 and tells the ancient story of Britain's King Lear who, weary of the responsibilities of power, decides to divide his kingdom among his three daughters.

The elder daughters, Goneril and Regan, flatter him to win vast shares of the domain, but the youngest, Cordelia, refuses to pretend to love her father more than she actually does, and Lear, in a rage, banishes her.

Goneril and Regan, once power is in their hands, persecute the old man to the point of madness; and Lear, stripped of his kingship, his illusions, and his daughters' love, journeys toward tragedy and the discovery of what it is to be human.

Michael Hordern, acknowledged in Britain as one of the theater's finest King Lears, will play the title role in Jonathan Miller's new production of "King Lear."

"The Shakespeare Plays" air on KBYU-TV each Saturday at 9 p.m.

FLICK FLACK

AN OFFICER AND A GENTLEMAN (R) — Richard Gere, a down-and-out son of an alcoholic, seeks respect and honor by enrolling in naval flight school. He meets Daphne Wingler, who dreams of marrying a jet pilot. Contains violence and sexual explicitness.

AUTHOR! AUTHOR! (PG) — The story of a playwright going through his second divorce and trying to raise five children alone. His latest play is also in trouble of failing. The movie stars Al Pacino and Dyan Cannon and contains harsh language and adult situations.

DAS BOOT (R) — A powerful German version of submarine warfare during World War II, with subtitles. Probably the best movie of the year. This intimate account of a submarine crew in some of the worst moments of the war is destined to be a classic. Contains explicit language.

DUCK SOUP (Film Society) — This movie is the Marx brothers' greatest of all. Groucho stars as prime minister of the mythical country of Fredonia, a country full of idiots. The Marx Brothers manage to reduce the kingdom to shambles in this brilliant satire of Nazi Germany.

FAST TIMES AT RIDGEMONT HIGH (R) — The typical "American Graffiti" movie portraying the teenage life at Ridgemon High. The film has little plot and concentrates on teenage sex. Could be considered soft-core pornography.

FOR YOUR EYES ONLY (PG) — Stars Roger Moore as 007 in this powerful, action-packed movie. Contains chase scenes in which 007 catches the bad guy and gets the girl.

HIGH NOON (Film Society) — Acclaimed as perhaps the greatest of all "western" dramas, this film is a classic in its field. Gary Cooper's performance earned him an Academy Award. The film fields an outstanding cast with Grace Kelly, Lloyd Bridges and Thomas Mitchell.

ON GOLDEN POND (PG) — The story of an elderly couple who spend the summer at a cottage as the husband struggles to accept growing old and dying. Contains profanity and adult situations.

PINK FLOYD: THE WALL (R) — This film is recommended for Pink Floyd lovers. This is the story of Pink Floyd and his evolution. It has a bizarre beginning and ending with all music and no dialogue.

PÖLTERGEIST (PG) — Steven Spielberg wrote and took over the direction of this movie, based on his own childhood fears. Ghosts come out of the television and haunt the owners of the house and capture the daughter.

ROCKY III (Varsity Theater) — The best of "The Italian Stallion" comes to life in this thrilling, heartwarming sequel. After losing his heavyweight title, Rocky must struggle to win the "Eye of the Tiger" back. Only after a long tedious struggle within himself does he come back to regain his title.

SIXPACK (PG) — Race car driver Brewster Baker, played by Kenny Rogers, picks up six kids to be his pit crew. The story is humorous and fun, with the exception of some profanity. It is perfect for the whole family to watch.

STAR TREK II: THE WRATH OF KAHN (PG) — The original cast from the television series is back in another movie on the Starship Enterprise. Good special effects and a familiar cast help make "Star Trek II" an outstanding film.

Dance classes to unite for lab

The Ballroom Dance Company will perform at the social dance class lab Tuesday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in the ELWC Ballroom, according to Tom Mardock, public relations director for the dance group.

The dance company's backup teams will present the floor show during intermission, he said.

The lab is conducted twice a semester for the social dance classes.

The purpose of the classes, he said, is to allow the students to practice.

About 2,000 students are expected to attend.

AMERICA HAS A NEW DIRECTION.
LET'S STAY ON COURSE.

In 1980 we started to turn America in a new direction. A direction different from the tax, spend, and promise politics that have dominated this country's legislative agenda for nearly 50 years. We elected President Reagan and a Republican majority in the Senate because we believed it would help strengthen America. We were right.

New Direction Taking Hold

The men and women that took office and positions of leadership as a result of that election inherited a set of economic problems that have been created over a period of decades by big-spending liberals. But the changes made by President Reagan and his fiscally responsible partners in the House and Senate have only had a few months to work. Just how successful have they been?

- Inflation cut from 13% to 5%
- Interest rates down from 22% to 13%
- Individual income taxes reduced 25% over three years
- Regulations cut by 33%
- Waste, Fraud, and Abuse cut by billions.
- Growth in government spending cut in half

Our problems aren't over yet, but we're making real progress. Senator Hatch plays a key role in helping President Reagan move this country in the direction of fiscal responsibility. He is part of a team that understands that it is time to reduce the size, cost and power of the federal government.

Let's Not Turn Back

The decision of who to vote for in this year's Senate race comes down to one basic question: Do we want to give America's new direction time to work or do we want to return to the tax, spend, and promise policies that are responsible for our present economic troubles?

The choice is clear.

Senator Orrin Hatch
